Easterly Echoes

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Worthing at the Wainwright Hospital on July 11th, a son.

Mrs. Stougaard and Julius received word of the death of Mr. Lawritz Hostrup at his home on Long Island, New York, at the age of 73 years and a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Hostrup and family were residents in Irma when Mr. Hostrup was a clerk in the old Co-op store about 28 years ago, following this he opened a store of his own which he operated for a few years.

Members of the Battle River W.I. that attended the Constituency Conference of the W.I. in Viking on Saturday were Mrs. H. Pascha, Mrs. W. Dootson, Mrs. M. Enger and Mrs. C. Steele. The last named was the official delegate. This W.I. local won second place in the handicraft display for the second year this being the second time they have completed.

Mr. M. Enger was an Edmonton business visitor for a few days. Mr. Eldon Fenton left Wednesday for Indian Head, Sask. where he intends to build a house for Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dunlop.

Mrs. W. Milton went to Edmonton on Saturday to attend the wedding of her daughter Annie and Mr. Clarence Fraser.

IRMA SENIOR BALL CLUB SPLITS 1st and 2nd MONEY AT MARWAYNE

The Irma Senior Baseball team went to Marwayne on July 13th to try for some of the $350.00 prize money. The first game with Derwent was fairly close until the last few innings, when Irma went on a batting spree, final score being 18 to 6. The second game with Dewberry was similar to the first, score being 12 to 3. After taking a half an hour to eat, Irma took on Lloydminster. After one inning of ball, the game was called on account of rain. Irma scored two runs. The ball game started again, but was called for good after one more inning was completed, the score still 2 to 0. Because five innings hadn't been played, first and second money was split, making $150 each. If it wouldn't rain or get dark so quick, Irma might be a richer ball club. The next tournament is at Myram.

SUPPORT JUNIOR BASEBALL. Has Junior Baseball been taking any of your attention? We think not. On several occasions our team has found itself in need of a rally but found itself also with a distinct lack of supporters. Maybe the supporters wouldn't have made us win but they would have helped. In the future you will find quite a few Junior games here and we would like a little support.

NEWS ITEMS FROM JARROW

The ball tournament which took place at Jarrow last Wednesday, July 13th, was a decided success. The weather man did his best and the large crowd the rest. Viking won from Valley in the men's final game.

Much credit is due the men around town who got the grounds ready and built the booth. The Ladies Aid wish to thank all who donated pies and doughnuts and helped so willingly in the booth. Especial thanks are extended to Mr. W. Jamieson who kept the fire going and the coffee pot boiling.

The most common expression heard about town these days is "Wasn't that a dandy rain?" Several of the children out at Batts have had a "bout" with the measles.

Gordon Meakins has fitted up a vacuum cleaner to a motor and will make your car upholstery or furniture look like new.

F. N. McKenzie has been appointed general passenger agent for the Canadian National Railways with headquarters at Winnipeg. Mr. McKenzie received his education in Saskatoon and started work there with the Canadian Northern Railway in 1917. He later served in Regina, Portland, Ore., Vancouver, Edmonton and was general agent at Jasper Park Lodge.

HEAVY RAINS BRIGHTEN CROP PROSPECTS

The heat wave last week came to an abrupt end on Saturday afternoon with a dust storm followed by a heavy rain and lower temperatures. The dust storm accompanied by a high wind twisted some small buildings off their foundations and several windmills were damaged throughout the country. The wind subsided somewhat after the rain started and which has continued intermittently up until going to press on Tuesday. Opinion is that the early sown crops will not benefit much, but later sown grains are coming along nicely, also the gardens and pastures. It has brightened hopes for a fair crop of feed and hay.

The city of Edmonton fared badly and seemed to be the storm centre. The heavy rain storm which was practically a flood burst, flooded the streets, viaducts, and basements of homes and business places and over-taxed the sewer system, doing a great deal of damage.

If lower part of a window shade is soiled, shade can be reversed to bring clean part into prominence; untuck shade from roller; reverse; cut off any damaged edges; near the pull-cord and jack back onto roller. Then stitch a new hem; slip stick through this hem and reinsert the pull-cord.

We have all enjoyed the nautical adventures of P. McGrane as portrayed in several recent issues of the Edmonton Journal. That his proposed trip with five Sea Cadets aboard the good ship Exeter only took him 15 miles along the Saskatchewan River instead of 800 as he had first intended is really too bad. But knowing him as we do we expect he got more of a thrill out of the shipwreck and rescue than he would have from an uneventful journey.

Albert D. Glasgow Awarded D.F.C.

On Saturday afternoon of July 9th, 1949, an Investiture for 128 airmen was held in the Drill Hall of Northwest Air Command. Lieutenant Governor Bowen was present. As Lieutenant Governor Bowen pinned the medal to the breast of the man being decorated, the citation was read aloud.

Following the impressive ceremony, a reception was held in the Officer's Mess for the men and their guests.

One local man, Albert David Glasgow, was among those decorated, being invested with the Distinguished Flying Cross. The citation on which this award was made reads as follows:

"Throughout many operational sorties this officer has displayed coolness in the face of the enemy and great devotion to duty. In August, 1944, he participated in an attack on enemy shipping at the mouth of the Gironde. During the engagement his aircraft was badly damaged and Pilot Officer Glasgow was wounded. Although in great pain he continued to give his pilot exact directions and navigated his aircraft safely back to base."

Wedding Bells LARSON - COCKROFT

Saturday evening in the Church of the Good Shepherd in Calder, Rev. R. S. Faulk, solemnized the marriage of Elsie Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cockroft of Edmonton, to Mr. Allan L. Larson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Larson of Irma.

The double-ring ceremony took place at 7:30, before an altar decorated with ferns, peonies and potted plants. Mr. Cockroft gave his daughter in marriage.

For her wedding, the bride chose a floor length gown of ivory brocade taffeta, styled with a peplum and long lily-point sleeves. Her veil, also floor-length, was gathered to a Mary Queen of Scots headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and white gladioli. A heart-shaped locket, gift from the groom, was her only jewellery.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. A. E. Burke, who wore a gown of mauve brocade taffeta with a picture hat of mauve silk net, trimmed with green velvet bows. She carried a colonial bouquet of sweet peas.

Miss Sheila Coulman, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. She was gowned in aqua brocade taffeta, with a floral bandeau in her hair, and carried a colonial of sweet peas.

Best man was Mr. Clair Lukens of Irma, and ushers were Mr. A. E. Burke of Edmonton and Mr. A. E. Larson of Irma, brother of the groom.

Mrs. S. D. Coulman of Irma was the organist, and the soloist was Mr. R. E. Bibby who sang "Because."

A reception was held at the Seven Seas following the ceremony where Mrs. Cockroft, mother of the bride, received in a yellow and black floral silk dress with a large matching hat and corsage of Talisman roses.

Sweet peas and peonies decorated the room, and a tiered cake, flanked by tall silver tapers and gladioli, centred the bride's table.

After a honeymoon at Jasper, the couple will reside at Irma. For going away, the bride wore a loganberry gingham suit complemented by gray accessories.

SHOWER HELD FOR RECENT BRIDE

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Stanton Gaultman recently in honor of Mrs. Allan Larson.

A large group of friends were present and the new bride received a fine array of useful and lovely gifts.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. H. Cockroft, Mrs. E. Brooke, mother and sister of the bride and Mrs. Simmersgill, sister of Mrs. Coulman, all of Edmonton.

BANK OF MONTREAL CROP REPORT NO. 5

Alberta - Showers in many areas and rains in some eastern districts have benefitted late-sown grains. Except for the southwest and Peace River, where conditions are satisfactory, early-sown grain crops are patchy and advancing rapidly with short heads and straw. Feed prospects are only fair to poor. General rains over all areas are needed.

SASKATCHEWAN - Intermittent showers to fairly heavy rains fell recently in many districts. Prospects in the eastern half of the Province and parts of the north west are mainly very promising. In the southwest, south-central and some central areas, however, conditions are very poor. Wheat is heading out in stands varying greatly in height.

MANITOBA - Some districts have received further good rains and crop prospects generally remain bright. Growth has been rapid and wheat now averages some nineteen inches in height; approximately 50 percent is in head. Green aphids are damaging oats and barley fields in south-western districts. An excellent sugar beet crop is in prospect.

Variety Plots and Field Days

Farmers and others are always interested in variety test plots and in new and unusual crops that they have never seen before. Because of this interest country grain buyers of companies associated with the Line Elevators Farm Service have cared for over 1,500 of these plots as a community service during the past nine years.

Purpose. The plots provide an excellent means for farmers, grain buyers, Junior Club members and others to become acquainted with the performance of varieties, old and new, under local soil and climatic conditions. Furthermore, there have been many changes in the officially recommended varieties in recent years. Most of those grown on farms today were unknown 10 years ago. Fortunately, the changes have nearly all been improvements and these plots provide one means of keeping up-to-date.

Research Pays Dividends. Crop production in Canada owes much to the plant breeder. Certainly the great cereal crops we produce in this country have originated almost entirely from varieties developed and improved by Canadian plant breeders. Farmers can look to the future with confidence, since the science of plant breeding will continue to provide the solution to many of our most important crop production problems.

Field Days. A common summer feature of agricultural extension work is the "Field Day" where new farm practices, new crop varieties and the results of field experiments are seen by and explained to farmers. Successful farmers know that any time spent at an Experimental Farm, Illustration Station or Variety Plot is well worth the effort. The greatest benefit is derived from variety plots when a field day is organized with a crop specialist present to discuss the merits and failings of the different varieties.

Everyone interested in field crops, new varieties, and good farming is invited to visit Line Elevator field plots. The Line Elevator Agent in charge will welcome your interest in his plots, so plan now to attend the "Field Day". Watch for local posters giving the date and time.

World of Wheat

By H. G. L. Strange

The press of the world is filled with discussions of Britain's economic crisis, which however is not new. It was foreseen some years ago by competent students of international affairs. Britain's troubles can be simply expressed. To fight the war Britain sold the greater part of her foreign investments, the interest on which brought in each year vast quantities of foodstuffs and raw materials-practically free. To take up the slack, in order to feed, clothe and shelter Britain's fifty million people (her own land feeds only 25 million) a great additional load has been thrown on her industries. Britain must produce more goods than she ever did, and moreover sell them to the world at a profit. Britain has not yet managed to do this, for one reason that her working people are still possessed with the idea of shorter hours, higher wages, and low productivity per man and in part because of the energy and money Britain is spending in vast social services, and further because her socialistic practices sap the initiative and enterprise of her people. Until these conditions are corrected, it does not seem as though Britain can make much progress in achieving her desired goal of being able to pay her own way in this world.

Britain Rebuilds

DAMAGE DONE TO HISTORIC BUILDINGS in all the countries involved is one of the many tragic features of war. Most regrettable, of course, is the death and disability caused by conflict, but the destruction of buildings of historic interest and architectural beauty, which cannot be replaced is a loss to people of the present and of future generations. To the people of Britain and the Commonwealth, the destruction of the British House of Commons by German bombs in 1941 marked the loss of a building associated with many historical events and rich in the tradition of the past. In this, as in the case of many other historic buildings destroyed during the war, little time was lost in commencing to rebuild.

Report Given On Progress

In May, 1947, work was commenced on the new House of Commons, and a recent report on the progress which is being made was given by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, the architect. While the old structure cannot be reproduced, it is apparent that the new building, which is expected to be ready for use by the autumn of next year, will have much of the charm of the original structure, with some features representative of the times in which it is being rebuilt. One of these features is the archway from the Chamber to the Lobby, which is being named the Churchill arch in honor of the great wartime leader of the government. It will be built partly of new stone, and partly of stone from the original building.

Wood Is Sent From Canada

From many parts of the Commonwealth valuable materials are being sent to complete the Chamber. Timber has been sent from Canada, as well as a white oak table. The speaker's chair, of black bean timber from North Queensland, Australia, is to be an exact replica of the speaker's chair in the Canadian House of Commons. Gifts have also come from South Africa, British Guiana, Northern Ireland, the Fiji Islands and many other parts of the Commonwealth. Architecturally the structure will be almost a replica of the old one but it will also contain evidences of the relationship between the various members of the Commonwealth and objects of beauty representative of the times in which it is being rebuilt.

BURGLAR GETS CREAM

TACOMA, Wash.—A hungry burglar invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark G. Seabloom in their absence. When the Seablooms returned they found the house ransacked, but nothing gone. Then when they got the milk off the back porch they found the cream of the four bottles missing.

FERTILIZING BY AIR

Two aircraft recently spread a New Zealand hill farm with ten tons of fertilizer in pellet form. Flying at 400 feet the plane released a ton of material in seven seconds over an area of about nine acres. No cost figures were made available but it appears that costs based on aircraft of one ton capacity were higher than land dressing. With planes having a capacity of 20 tons or more the cost would be considerably less.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"Good gracious, how terrible!" exclaimed the professor as he finished reading the note left behind by his daughter who had run away.
"What ever is the matter dear?" asked his wife, concerned at his obvious distress.
For answer, the professor handed her the letter to read.
"So she's eloped with that nice-looking officer," was the lady's calm comment. "Well I can't say it's quite unexpected."
"But she's eloped with two?"
"I" moaned the man of learning.

"Please, sir," said the small boy nervously on coming into class, "ought I to be punished for something I haven't done?"
"Of course not," said the master kindly.
"Please, sir," said the small boy with a sigh of relief, "I haven't done my homework."

Professional Photographer: "Now watch closely and you'll see the little dicky bird come out."
Modern Child: "Oh, don't be silly, expose the plate and get it over."

"I forgot to put a stamp on that letter, Jane," hope you didn't post it without."
"Yes, I did, m'am. I thought you were economizing."

"I've taken three lessons in French."
"Could you carry on a conversation with a Frenchman?"
"Oh, no, but I could talk to anybody else who had had three lessons."

"And what is a synonym, Willie?"
"A synonym," said Willie, "is a word that you can use when you can't spell the other one."

"I'm looking for my husband," said the customer to the shopwalker. "I said I would meet him here an hour ago."
"What is he like?" asked the shopwalker.
"He's fair, and—but he'll be purple by now," was the reply.

Hints For-- Happy Motoring

FOLLOWING is one of a series for happy motoring that appeared in issue of "Happy Motoring" magazine, and we hope the "Ten Do's" and "Nine Don'ts" will help you avoid those unnecessary accidents and make driving easier and safer:

The Ten DO'S

1. Many accidents are caused by pre-occupation with business or domestic troubles. Keep your personal annoyances to yourself and don't take them out on the motoring public.
2. Avoid sudden stops. Form the habit of depressing the brake pedal lightly a few times when you intend to stop soon. This will light up your stop light and warn the driver behind you that you intend to stop.
3. Be careful in your approach to bridges, trestles, culverts, underpasses and tunnels. You should be able to stop without collision if the entrance is blocked.
4. Watch the fellow with mangled fenders, twisted bumpers, or shrieking brakes. Accidents are a habit with him and he's probably a poor driver.
5. Drivers who do not slow down soon enough, or who pick up too quickly at the outskirts of town, are responsible for a very high percentage of the serious accidents. Drivers who have not been out on the highway do not expect excessive speed, and may misjudge yours. Even though you may seem to be crawling, obey the speed laws.
6. If there is a question of an accident, yield the right of way. Being right won't pay the doctor bills if you are hit, and there's little comfort in knowing it was the other fellow's fault.
7. If you even suspect any change in visibility at night, check your headlights. You don't want to be driving one of those annoying and dangerous "one-eyed" cars.
8. Keep your foot off the clutch. Riding the clutch causes unnecessary wear on the clutch facing.
9. Dim your lights for the other fellow, even if he doesn't dim for you. Blinding him may cause an accident—and you'll be in it!
10. There is less traffic in the months between October and February, but there are more accidents. Take the hint and drive carefully.

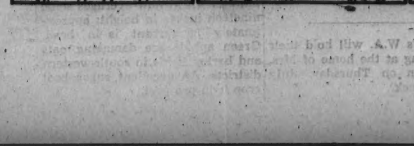

The Nine DON'TS

1. Don't get too close to the car ahead of you on the highway. Remember, you have never seen the driver before and know nothing about him, yet you are putting your life in his hands if he decides to stop suddenly. If someone is talking to you, slow down gradually so he can pass you. If you are following a friend in another car, or are one of a group of cars in line, leave enough room between your car and the one ahead for another car to get in if necessary.
2. Don't underinflation tires for an easy ride. Underinflation causes 60 per cent. of the blowouts.
3. Don't pull up close to the lowered gates at a railroad crossing. A car might bump you from behind and push you into the path of the train.
4. Don't open the left-hand door to alight without first checking to see that nothing is coming behind you. You not only endanger your own life, but you might cause an accident if the driver behind you swerves into the wrong lane to avoid you.
5. Don't fail to glance at your oil and water gauges every 10 minutes. Attention to them may save you a repair bill.

THE TILLERS

LITTLE REGGIE

Pigs With Jitters Seldom Die

That's the answer University of Illinois veterinarians have given to several worried swine raisers who have asked about the disease.

Some pigs jump up and down, raising their front legs from the ground; others raise their hind legs. Sometimes the neck muscles are affected, and the pigs' heads jerk all constantly.

Veterinarians call the jumping condition myoclonia congenita. In farmers' language, this means that the pigs have spasms of their muscles. The cause of the jitters is not known.

Pigs generally are affected at farrowing time or soon after. In some litters all of the pigs are jittery; in others only one or two pigs may be affected. Symptoms are worse when the pig is awake and moving about. But the disease is seldom fatal, Doctor C. C. Morrill, of the College of Veterinary Medicine, assures hog raisers. The jittery pigs usually stop their jumping by weaning time and are normal. The jitters may not slow down a pig's growth seriously unless it has a hard time nursing. Only in rare cases are the jitters noticeable when the pigs are marketed.—Morrill's Stockmen's Letter.

6. Don't use matches when your car is in motion. They require two hands. Get a lighter, preferably of the non-flame type.
7. Don't light a match or smoke in a garage or filling station.
8. Don't leave your motor running while you get gasoline, or when you get out of the car for any reason.
9. Don't fail to keep the metal hose nozzle in contact with the tank filler spout on your car, if you should handle the gasoline hose yourself. This will prevent a spark of static electricity that might ignite gasoline vapour.

Safety First In Swimming

OTTAWA.—Wise are the parents who teach their children how to swim—not only is it a good sport, but often it is a means of avoiding a drowning tragedy later on.

Pointing a warning finger at the number of summer drownings annually in Canada, health and welfare department officials say a little time and a little practice beforehand could prevent such heartbreaks.

"For your own sake, learn to swim; and for the sake of others, learn approved methods of life-saving and artificial respiration," say the experts.

When planning on going for a swim, first of all get someone to accompany you. Stay out of the water if exhausted from fatigue, or from any other cause. Avoid bathing with one hour after a meal. Don't go in swimming when the body is cooling after perspiring.

Avoid bathing altogether in the open air if, after having been a short time in the water, there is a sense of chilliness with numbness of the hands and feet.

When taken with cramp while swimming, the Royal Life-Saving Society offers the following advice: Keep calm and, turning on the back, rub and stretch the affected limb.

If seized in the calf of the leg, turn the toes, straighten the leg, and stretch the muscles; apply friction and kick the surface of the water until they relax.

DOG TURNS ON RADIO FOR ITS OWN ENTERTAINMENT
POTTSVILLE, Pa.—How'd you like to own a dog who turns on the radio and dials in programs? Raymond Klinger, 61-year-old Locust Gap, Pa., bachelor, thinks he has one.

Several times in the last month Klinger has left his house, turning off the radio. When he returned the set was going full blast.

Curious, he walked out and then watched through a window. He said his dog, Skippy, jumped on the table, flipped the switch and then dialed with his paw.

The only thing he's not sure of is whether Skippy likes singing commercials or disc jockeys.

Don't Load Up On Your Travels

MAKE these concessions, wives, on your vacation trip this summer... just for your husband's sake.
Don't pack enough clothes to last you six months if you are going on a two weeks' automobile trip.
Sure, it's a vacation and you hate to be hurried, but do try to speed up your dressing time, so that your husband doesn't feel like he is waiting half of his vacation waiting for you to get ready to do this or that.
Don't insist on looking up acquaintances you've forgotten you go through, especially if they are friends of yours who have never even met your husband.

Do be systematic about your packing so that you aren't constantly asking your husband to haul in half a dozen bags every time you stop for the night.

If you have left the children behind, don't keep wondering out loud if they are getting along all right. If you can't help worrying about them, worry silently.

Don't insist on doing everything and going everywhere "the girls" have told you that you mustn't miss. Don't let a single argument mar the fun of your trip. It takes two to argue so all you have to do to keep peace is keep still when things don't go just right.

But above all ACT as though you're having fun. So many wives wonder their worries on their faces even when they're supposed to be vacationing to "get away from it all."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE MAN IN MY LIFE ::

"Every Man Has His Own Place And His Own Women."

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

THE Shawn sisters were easily the loveliest of all the girls who grew up around Foxcroft. They married young and well—rich men who gave them cars and furs—all except Lesley, easily the prettiest of the four. Lesley turned down a half-dozen fine offers, waited until Brad Connor came home from the war, married him the week after and went with him to the old Connor place on Malvern Hill, out of the world and by the world forgotten. Everybody said how foolish she was. The three other Shawn sisters, in their penthouses and on their country estates, said it oftenest. Lola, the eldest, a redhead with eyes green as emeralds and just as hard, hammered at Lesley: "Don't be such a fool. Think of what you're letting yourself in for when you marry Brad and go off to that eagle's eyrie of his. I know Brad's a good guy—sober, serious, steady, and you won't want for anything as long as he can milk a cow or handle a plow, but there's much more in life."

"Brad," Lesley said simply, "is what I want."

"Name it," Lesley shook her head. "Oh, it's something you can't name, Lollie."

"You're hopeless. And I wish you wouldn't call me Lollie—it doesn't like it." Lesley smiled. She had been through this so often. With Sally, who had a yacht named after her by adoring Marvin Grant, who was bald but nice; with Beth who owned race horses and had a cocktail named after her by Pete Somers, who had lots of hair but was nasty.

Lesley and Brad went quietly off to the little church where, as children, they had sung in the choir, pretending to read the same hymnal, and there were married by old Canon Ross who had baptized them both. Then they went to the farm on the hill. The sisters and husbands came with gifts—rich things that seemed garish among the old furniture.

"Nothing's right in that rockery," stormed Lola. "That lovely portable bar they chucked in the barn—and Brad never sits in that chrome chair we gave him."

"I don't see how she can stand it," agreed Sally. "The place is like Wuthering Heights."

"Les will get fed up soon," said Beth. "Cooking, washing, mending, even painting the walls herself. And Brad seems to take it all so sublimely for granted. He just smokes his pipe and half the time doesn't even talk to her."

"And they haven't even got a radio," said Lola.

"Radio?" Beth shrugged. "They haven't even got electricity. I heard Brad say he's buying a power-plant with some of his coins."

"Well, when he does we'll give 'em a radio," said Sally. "We'll all have a party."

They fixed the party for a night so clear and big-starred that even their blue coats were moved. Ed stopped the car on the lookout and said, "What a night! Makes you feel sort of good. And it's so peaceful and quiet up there. Maybe those kids have something. The world's kind of a crummy place of late." "It's no place for Lesley," cut in Lola. "I dunno," grunted Pete Somers. "He's an able guy, Connor. He gave me the idea he knows where he's going and what he's after."

"You're impossible," said Beth. "Both of you. I don't know what Lesley sees in him."

"Once the glamour of first love wears off—," Sally yawned. Marven was already asleep; his shiny head on her shoulder.

Music flowed into the room. They sat around the fire, and Pete mixed his cocktails and they danced. Brad didn't have much to say, nor did Lesley. Lesley made sandwiches and there was chocolate cake she baked herself and everybody ate a lot.

Brad excused himself; he had a sick cow to look to. And when he said that, the Shawn girls looked wonderingly with pity for a girl whose husband would leave a party to go look at a sick cow.

The radio babbled on. "Hey!" said Ed. "This is a good program—The Man in My Life, it's called. Some famous lovely tells all about the great love of her career. Who's this one?"

"Sybil Mallock, Lady Dale," said Beth. "I've been listening. It's good. This was some fellow she met in the war. He rescued her from a burning billet or something. She wanted him to marry her—well, listen to it yourselves—"

—the sort of man I had always dreamed about," said the beautiful voice that made one picture its owner's beauty. "I fell in love with him the moment my eyes opened and I always remember the way he looked at me, the way he took his pipe from his mouth, squinted at it and said, 'Every man has his own place and his own woman—I found mine long ago.'"

"The sap!" muttered Lola. "Imagine," said Beth. "She had a fortune too."

The others sat there imagining it. Brad came back from the barn and said the cow was doing nicely.

"That's swell," grinned Ed. "You missed some high romance on the radio, Brad." He winked at the others; he was quite a kiddier, was Ed. "You ever meet any swell dames who fell in love with you and wanted to throw themselves and their fortunes in your lap?"

Brad took his pipe from his mouth and squinted at it, and suddenly the room was still. "Every man," he said slowly, "at his own place and his own woman—I found mine long ago." (Copyright Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate)

Britons Favor Holidays At Sea Resorts

That's the finding of a 12-month survey conducted by the British Tourist & Holidays Board to determine how many people take a holiday, where they go and what they like best.

The board found that every year an average 24,000,000 Britons above the age of four—56 per cent. of the population—go on vacation. Some 9,000,000 others don't go either because they haven't the inclination or can't find suitable accommodation.

More than 15,000,000 choose the seaside every year. Some 5,000,000 others like the country; 2,700,000 visit towns and 1,200,000 go abroad.

The board also found that licensed hotels are now less in demand. More holiday travellers are seeking boarding house accommodation. Favorite holiday months are July and August when the sun is hottest.

The board's report said "the bulk of the people are better off economically than they were in the past. They are better educated and their living conditions have improved. As a result, they expect a much higher standard in holiday conditions than formerly."

The lights of the old house twinkled among the pines and firelight shone out when Lesley and Brad came to the door. The men carried in the radio.

"Here's something to liven you kids up," said Ed. "Bring a bit of cheer into your lives."

"That was good of you all," said Brad. "We planned on getting one now that we have the power, but we hadn't got around to it. We have an outlet right here by the fireplace—"

Music flowed into the room. They sat around the fire, and Pete mixed his cocktails and they danced. Brad didn't have much to say, nor did Lesley. Lesley made sandwiches and there was chocolate cake she baked herself and everybody ate a lot.

Alaska Heading For Record Influx Of Tourists

JUNEAU, Alaska. — According to Alaska's pre-season tourist barometer—the stack of inquiring letters from all parts of the world—the territory expects in 1949 the greatest influx of tourists in its 81-year-old history. Thousands of persons scurry from Alexandria, Egypt, to Omaha, Neb., and Buitenzorg, Indonesia, at dawn during the winter to write the Alaska Development Board for information on how to get to the territory and what to do and see when they reach America's Land of the Midnight Sun.

An attorney in Omaha requested directions to drive to the Yukon River. A school teacher in New Orleans asked if she should wear "longies" aboard ship while cruising Alaska waters. A welder in Trenton, N.J., wanted to fly and Alaska the Arctic Circle and across the international dateline into tomorrow. A secretary in Los Angeles thought she would go husband-hunting in the north, and asked for particulars. The Egyptian sportman and Indonesian student wanted general information.

Alaska's hopes of becoming a state in 1949 have brightened and Alaskans are preparing to meet a tourist rush. Accommodations have been increased approximately 10 per cent. over those of last year. There were more than 80 hotels, lodges and other tourist facilities operating in Alaska during 1948. There were also 40 similar establishments, with a total of about 1,000 beds, along the 1,523-mile Alasko Highway, between Dawson and Fairbanks.

HAS REDUCED HERDS

War has reduced the herds of Europe and farmers are struggling to build them to former levels. Nine million tons of coarse grains will have to be imported if 1950 targets are to be reached.

Says Girls Know How To Keep Cool

OTTAWA.—Hot, eh? Well, take a tip from the girls. They have it all over the men when it comes to knowing how to keep cool in warm weather.

That's the opinion of Dr. R. G. Rate, chief of the Health and Welfare Department's Civil Service Health Division. He said in an interview he was heartily in favor of open-necked dresses, shorts and no stockings.

"Clothing should be light and as non-constructive as possible — and women follow that out," he said. "But men! Those ties!"

The neck-tie is "one of the worst offenders," Dr. Rate looked down perspicaciously, and accusingly, at his own dark blue number.

"A neck-tie," he said, "prevents circulation of air between the neck and the body."

Shirts, open at the neck, were the best.

As for physical exercise, he warned that persons getting on in years should be chary of hot weather activity.

For instance, "you'll find a lot of people playing tennis on the hottest day."

While this might not be harmful to the young ones, older persons should be careful — especially those not used to exertion.

"People more than 45 should not indulge in unaccustomed strenuous exercise, particularly in hot weather," said Dr. Rate.

Some Do's And Don'ts When Electrical Storms Approach

TRENTON, N.J. — Don't worry about being killed by lightning this Summer.

The odds against it are about 375,000 to 1, the New Jersey Medical Society said.

Besides, if you can hear the thunder clap, you're safe. The speed of light is faster than the speed of sound, so you'll never hear the thunder if those long odds come up and the lightning hits you.

The Medical Society put out a warning telling of the dangers of electrical storms and giving some figures on lightning.

The records say five times as many males as females are killed by lightning. This may be due to the fact that nine out of 10 lightning deaths occur outdoors in rural areas.

What to do when the clouds start to rumble and the celestial fireworks begin? If you're indoors, stay there.

If you happen to be outdoors, the best place to look for is a hole in the ground — the "foxhole" of the Second World War, a deep valley, shelter under a steep cliff or the centre of dense woods.

But what not to do is even more important. You're a lot smarter to get soaked by rain out in the open than to get soaked by lightning standing under a lone tree. Other danger spots to avoid are wire fences, clotheslines, open sheds or small outbuildings.

Golfers came in for a special scolding from the society. Instead of lugging those clubs under a tree, golfers should put their clubs down and stay out in the open.

Lightning, the Medical Society says, never needs to strike twice.

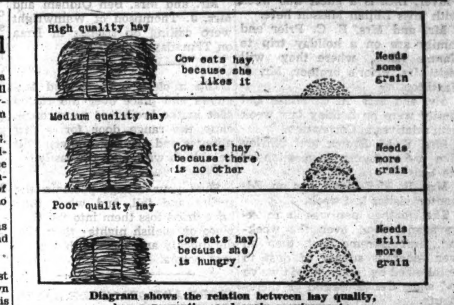

THIS JAWBONE GOES BACK MILLION YEARS

JOHANNESBURG. — Dr. Robert Broom, South African paleontologist, announced discovery of a jawbone which may have been from a human who lived nearly 1,000,000 years ago.

"If this jaw proves to be human it may be the oldest human one known," Broom said.

FRENCH FARMERS ARE BATTLING COLORADO BEETLE MENACE—One of the many hazards that farmers have to contend with is the combating of insects that are injurious to crops, fruits and vegetables. In France the farmers are trying to cope with Colorado beetle menace that has broken out. One of the methods being used to kill the insects is shown in above picture. A helicopter is being used to spray a potato field near Caen. An estimated 10,000 acres in the neighborhood of Caen will receive same treatment.—E.N.S. photo.

Communist Assault On Religion Grows

"The assault upon the Catholic church in Czechoslovakia, and the abuse of Archbishop Beran by Moscow's Communist puppet government in that country are but one more stage of the Stalinist war upon religion." This comment on the present situation in Czechoslovakia, is made by the Chicago Tribune, in an editorial appearing Tuesday, June 21, 1949.

"The editorial reminds everyone that Catholics and Protestants alike have been seized, tried, and condemned in every Communist country, as shown by the dreary series of state mandated court-room persecutions in Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, and now Czechoslovakia. More martyrdoms are in the making."

"In Czechoslovakia," says The Tribune, "the Communist state has asserted its intention to take over church schools, abolish church papers, control the appointment of priests and church personnel, intervene in the education of seminarians by placing political tutors in charge of 'social progress' courses which priests must pass to qualify, and divorce the church in Czechoslovakia from the authority of the Vatican."

"This factual editorial says that 'These are familiar steps in the Communist procedure in virtually every country where the party is dominant. A church will be left but it will be a church enslaved to Communist purposes."

"What is less well known is that the liquidation of all religions is proceeding with an even greater fury of persecution within Russia itself. A calculated state campaign of anti-Semitism has been in operation for months. Now a Moslem religious leader from soviet central Asia has reached Cairo with the account of how the Stalinist despotism has been conducting a purge of the war."

"Some Christians may feel that soviet enmity directed toward the Moslems might be overlooked. Many Gentiles may feel that anything done against the Jews might be overlooked. There may be Protestants who feel that soviet action against the Roman Catholic church might be overlooked by Protestants as being none of their affair. However, all of us should know by this time that Communism deals with all alike."

Combining the Crop

There is no method of harvesting a crop of standing grain as cheaply as with a Combine, whether it be a tractor drawn power take off machine, or tractor drawn motor driven, or completely Self Propelled. In Western Canada 61.9% of all Self Propelled machines in use are Massey-Harris. All other makes put together comprise 38.1 per cent. These figures in themselves should be a convincing argument against buying anything but a Massey-Harris. This Company has had more years of experience in engineering Combines than any other manufacturer. In 1901 Massey-Harris built a Stripper Harvester for use in Australia and Argentine and in 1938 Massey-Harris introduced the first successful self-propelled combine. Yet these statements fail to convince some farmers, and they just don't believe but what any other make is just as good as the Massey-Harris especially if a dealer offers him a big price for some old machine in order to make a sale. However, after using this other make, they are always in a year or two's time, begging to trade it in on a Massey-Harris. Did you Mr. Farmer ever hear of anyone wanting to trade a Massey-Harris for any other make? If you want a Combine, let's have your order early and remember the parts service you are going to get in your home town. Remember your M-H dealer is an old Thresherman.
